

Top Secret Guide to Saving Democracy

(A.K.A. The Libertie Memo)

A Strategic Plan to Restore Economic Justice, Rebuild Democracy, and Crush Corporate Oligarchy

So, Here's the Deal...

For decades, corporate elites and their political allies have been working behind the scenes to take over. They've rigged the economy, gutted workers' rights, and stacked the government in their favor. They did it on purpose. It wasn't an accident.

They had a game plan—the Powell Memo—a strategy to shift power away from regular people and hand it over to CEOs, billionaires, and right-wing politicians. They've spent 50 years carrying it out. And now, they're close to turning America into a full-blown corporate oligarchy. (Check out this amazing rundown of the Powell Memo and how it built the modern Republican Party on The American Manifesto on substack. <https://americanmanifesto.news/p/the-real-deep-state>)

But here's the good news: it can be stopped.

This guide is about taking back control. It's about flipping the script and rebuilding an economy and democracy that actually works for the people. If each of us picks just one strategy and goes all in, we can flip this country right-side up. One person can't do it all—but together? We're unstoppable.

OVERALL STRATEGY:

1. Mass Mobilization & Grassroots Movement Building – Grow a coalition of labor, youth, progressives, and working-class voters.
2. Institutional Power Building – Expand influence in media, education, legal institutions, and policymaking.
3. Electoral Strategy & Policy Implementation – Win elections at all levels and push structural reforms to curb corporate influence.
4. Economic Leverage Against Oligarchy – Use worker power, public investment, and regulation to rein in corporate control.

The Step-by-Step Roadmap

Step 1. Organize & Mobilize the Working Class

Billionaires aren't rich because they work harder—they're rich because they've rigged the system and crushed unions. Time to make that a hard stop!

Stronger unions mean higher wages, better benefits, and real worker power. That's why we push mass unionization, making it easier to organize, and backing worker co-ops. When workers unite, we win.

Tactic 1: Mass Unionization & Labor Movement Revival

- Strengthen the labor movement by aggressively pushing union drives (especially in service, tech, and logistics sectors).
- Back national Card Check laws to make unionizing easier.
- Support worker co-ops and employee-owned businesses.

Tactic 2: Build a Progressive Political Machine

- Form grassroots political organizations modeled on FDR's New Deal coalition.
- Engage young voters, minorities, and disaffected working-class voters through community organizing and direct outreach.
- Fund & support progressive primary challengers against corporate-backed Democrats.

Tactic 3: Mass Protest & Direct Action

- Organize coordinated national strikes to demand higher wages, healthcare, and voting rights.
- Conduct massive boycotts of oligarch-controlled industries (e.g., tech, fossil fuels, corporate media).

Step 2. Take Back the Media & Education System

If you control the story, you control the people. For decades, corporations and right-wing billionaires have used the media and education system to push their agenda—glorifying greed, rewriting history, and convincing people that billionaires are “job creators” instead of power hoarders. Time to change the channel.

We need our own media, our own narratives, and an education system that tells the truth. That means funding independent news, using social media to fight corporate spin, and making sure schools teach real history—not billionaire-approved propaganda.

Tactic 4: Build Progressive Media Ecosystem

- Establish and fund a public interest press (podcasts, online news, TV networks) representing progressive, anti-corporate, and worker-driven ethos to counter the corporate propaganda embedded in our legacy media.
- Use social media for counter-messaging campaigns against corporate narratives.
- Develop alternative education programs (YouTube channels, TikTok influencers, podcasts, Substacks) to counter conservative misinformation.

Tactic 5: Reclaim Public Education from Corporate Control

- Ban privatization of public schools and redirect charter school funds back to public education.
- Reform university funding to reduce corporate influence and encourage critical thinking.
- Revive civics education & labor history in schools to energize New Deal-era political consciousness.

Step 3. Win Elections & Enact Systemic Reforms

The billionaires aren't just hoarding money—they're hoarding political power. They've rigged elections with voter suppression, corporate cash, and politicians who work for Wall Street instead of Main Street.

Time to clean house.

We need automatic voter registration, campaign finance reform, and an economy that actually works for people. That means electing real progressives, kicking out corporate-backed politicians, and making policies like Medicare for All, the Green New Deal, and free public college non-negotiable. If we want change, we have to win power and use it.

Tactic 6: Expand Voting Rights & End Voter Suppression

- Implement automatic voter registration and national vote-by-mail.
- Create secure, block-chain voting recording and tabulation that citizens can check online.
- Fight gerrymandering & voter ID laws through legal challenges.
- Enforce campaign finance reform (e.g., overturn Citizens United).

Tactic 7: Build a New Progressive Economic Platform

- Medicare for All – remove corporate control of healthcare. Full Stop.
- Green New Deal – massive public jobs program & clean energy investment.
- Public Banking & Postal Banking – reduce reliance on Wall Street banks.
- Universal Childcare, Paid Family Leave, and Free College to rebuild the middle class.

Tactic 8: Primary Corporate Democrats & Take Over the Democratic Party

- Challenge corporate-aligned Democrats with FDR-style economic populists.
- Fund and back progressive candidates at every level (from school board to Congress).
- Establish progressive policy think tanks to draft and push legislation.

Step 4. Dismantle Corporate Control Over Government

Let's be real—corporations don't just influence the government, they own it. Big Tech, Wall Street, and fossil fuel billionaires have spent billions buying politicians, rigging laws, and making sure the system works for them—not us. Time to cut them off.

We break up monopolies, tax the ultra-rich, and shut down corporate cash in politics. No more billionaire-funded elections. No more CEOs running the country from the shadows. The government should work for the people, not a handful of rich men in boardrooms.

Tactic 9: Break Up Monopolies & Tax the Rich

- Use antitrust laws to break up Big Tech, Wall Street banks, and media conglomerates.
- Implement wealth taxes, financial transaction taxes, and corporate profit caps.
- Nationalize key industries where corporations wield excessive power (healthcare, energy, transportation, social media).

Tactic 10: Cut Corporate Influence in Politics

- Ban corporate PAC money and create publicly financed elections.
- Strengthen worker representation in government through labor councils and advisory boards.
- Abolish the Filibuster to pass structural reforms with a simple majority.

Step 5. Shift the Political Narrative Toward Economic Justice

For years, the rich and powerful have pushed the same tired lie: that if you're struggling, it's your fault—not because the system is rigged. They've convinced people that corporate greed is good, that taxing billionaires is “socialism,” and that fighting for fair wages makes you “entitled.” Enough of that.

We reclaim the conversation and make economic justice mainstream again. That means exposing corrupt politicians, calling out corporate propaganda, and making policies like universal healthcare and workers' rights as American as apple pie. The truth is simple: a government that works for the people isn't radical—it's long overdue.

Tactic 11: Reframe the Debate on Capitalism & Socialism

- Rebrand New Deal policies as “economic patriotism” rather than “socialism.”
- Use economic populism to appeal to both rural and urban voters.
- Connect FDR's and TR's legacy with modern progressive policies to show continuity.

Tactic 12: Target Corporate-Owned Politicians

- Expose corrupt politicians who serve corporate interests through investigative journalism.
- Run aggressive political campaigns showing how corporate elites rig the system.
- Push for term limits and stricter ethics laws for politicians.

Final Thoughts: The Long Game

The Powell Memo took 50 years to turn the U.S. into a billionaire's playground. We're not flipping it overnight—but we are flipping it. This strategy is about doing exactly what they did, just in reverse—organizing from the ground up, taking over institutions, winning elections, and shifting power back to the people.

Here's the good news: most Americans are already on our side. They want Medicare for All, fair wages, and higher taxes on billionaires—even a lot of Trump voters (except the hardcore MAGA cult, because let's be honest, they're in a different reality). The real fight isn't about changing minds—it's about cutting through corporate propaganda, shutting down the distractions, and turning that broad support into real power and real wins.

Stay loud. Stay bold. Stay American!
