

What to Do If Masked, Armed Men Try to Abduct You

From The American Pamphleteer's War Room
Series

Field-tested tools for organized resistance

This is not law enforcement.

If masked men in tactical gear try to seize you or someone nearby—without identifying themselves, showing a badge, presenting a warrant, or arriving in a marked vehicle—this is not an arrest.

This is a kidnapping attempt.

You are not legally required to comply (ACLU, n.d.).

1. Stay Calm. Assess Fast.

Ask:

“Are you law enforcement? What agency? Badge or ID number? Do you have a warrant?”

They must identify themselves, provide a name, badge or ID number, and show a warrant if attempting a search or arrest (ACLU, n.d.). A patch is not proof. An ID number or badge number is.

If they refuse or get hostile, that's a red flag.

2. Call 911 Immediately.

Tell the dispatcher:

“Armed men are trying to abduct someone. They’re refusing to identify themselves or show a warrant.”

Give:

- Your location
- Description of the individuals
- Any vehicle details (make, license plate, direction)

Do not speculate about who they are. Just describe what you see.

3. If It’s Happening to Someone Else

You have a right to intervene under the legal principle of defense of others—a recognized extension of self-defense in many states (Cornell Law School, n.d.).

Start recording with your phone. Narrate the scene:

- Date, time, location
- Who’s involved
- What they’re saying and doing
- What you’re doing to document or intervene

4. If You’re the Target

You are not required to answer questions or comply without clear, lawful identification (ACLU, n.d.).

Say loudly:

“I’m being kidnapped!”

“Show me your badge and warrant!”

Do not resist physically unless you fear for your life and believe there’s no other option. But you are allowed to refuse unlawful detention.

5. Record & Document Everything

Even if you can’t film, yell for someone else to start recording.

Write down or memorize:

- Physical appearance of attackers
- What they said or demanded
- Vehicle type, color, and license plate
- Exact time and location

This is crucial evidence if you file a report or take legal action later.

6. Afterward

Report the incident to:

- Local police
- FBI civil rights division

Then:

- Find legal help
- Tell your story publicly, if you’re safe to do so

Abductions and illegal detentions rely on secrecy. Shine a light.

Reminder: Your Rights When Confronted

According to the ACLU (n.d.), all law enforcement officers must:

- Identify themselves
- State their agency
- Provide a name and badge or ID number
- Present a warrant to search or detain on private property
- Inform you if you are under arrest

If they refuse or ignore your questions, they are not acting lawfully—no matter what patch they're wearing.

Ask These Questions Aloud

- “Are you a sworn law enforcement officer?”
- “Which agency are you with?”
- “What’s your name and badge/ID number?”
- “Do you have a warrant?”
- “Am I under arrest?”

If they won't answer—you have the right to refuse questions, filming, or detainment (ACLU, n.d.).

Bottom Line

A patch is not law. A badge number is. A warrant is. A name is.

If they won't give those, you do not owe them cooperation.

For more tools to resist authoritarian violence:

Subscribe to The American Pamphleteer <http://ladyLibertie.substack.com>

References

ACLU. (n.d.). Know your rights: Immigrants' rights. American Civil Liberties Union. Retrieved June 26, 2025, from <https://www.aclu.org/know-your-rights/immigrants-rights#i-was-stopped-by-police-ice-or-border-patrol-while-in-transit>

Cornell Law School. (n.d.). Defense of others. Legal Information Institute. https://www.law.cornell.edu/wex/defense_of_others

Join the Resistance. Share this. Prepare Now.

Liked this? Subscribe to The American Pamphleteer on Substack. There are also books, resources and pamphlets to pass out to your resistance group. <https://ladylibertie.substack.com/>
